

The Arctic tern undertakes the longest annual migration of any bird. Each year it flies from its Arctic breeding grounds to the Antarctic. Over a lifetime the distance covered is comparable to several trips to the Moon and back, an astonishing feat for a bird of its size. This document exists only to exercise the PDF text extraction path in the flashcard generator test suite and carries no real content.